Ex-premier of Britain Says it Offers Only Chance of Reparations Settlement

DECLARES DELAY WEAKENS
RESOURCES OF GERMANY

Longer the Wait the Less Germany Will be Able to Pay

MONTREAL. — By The Associated Press. — Secretary Hughes' proposal, made nearly two years ago for the appointment of a commission of experts to determine Germany's capacity to pay reparations, was declared by David Lloyd George Monday night to be "absolutely the best hope of the settlement of reparations."

The former British premier made this assertion when shown press dispatches from Washington which stated that high American administration officials believed it was not too late for acceptance of the plan. His statement came after he had delivered his first public address in Canada, in which he expressed his gratitude for the respect and unobtrusive part which the dominion played in the world war.

Commenting on Secretary Hughes' plan, Mr. Lloyd George said:

Indorses Hughes' Plan

"In my opinion this plan is not too late for consideration and it is absolutely the best hope of the settlement of reparations. Of course, since the plan was first broached the ability of Germany to pay is much less. The greater the delay the closer the situation approaches chaos. I hope that serious consideration of Mr. Hughes' plan may be taken up at this late date and I repeat that it is the best hope of a successful settlement."

The Washington press dispatches indicate that in official opinion there any acceptance of the plan would rest with France.

Britain's war time premier spoke late Monday afternoon to an enthusiastic audience which crowded the Mount Royal arena, with its seating capacity of 10,000, to the doors.

French Silent on U. S. Stand

PARIS. — The French government has no comment to make on the reported declaration of President Coolidge that the allied war debt to the United States must be paid, it was said at the Quai d'Orsay Tuesday.

Neither could the French government on David Lloyd George's letter to President Wilson in 1920, which was published here, in which the former British premier pointed out that if reparations were made in Germany's obligations, proportionate reductions should be made in the inter-allied war debts.

The declaration that President Coolidge was unanimously opposed to the cancellation by the United States of the debt owed it by the European countries, emanated from the White House Friday. The debt question, it was said, was in the hands of the funding commission created by congress, and the president's position was that the government could only make settlements within the terms of the act creating the commission. He felt, however, that the United States should not unduly press any of its debtors and should be liberal in the settlements it makes.

FOREST FIRE PERIL INCREASES—WIND RISES, WOODS DRY

SUPERIOR, Wis.—With a fresh wind from the west, fanning the flames to new fury, the northwest again was threatened with disaster from forest fires Tuesday.

The sun hung like a huge ember over this city, through a haze of smoke. With the timber-lands dry as tinder after weeks in which no rain has fallen the danger of a holocaust like that of 1913 when hundreds were left homeless was greatly increased with a strong west wind.

Fires are burning in the woods in almost every direction around the city. Hundreds of men have been engaged in fighting back the brush fires for days.

Coolidge Plans No Action Upon Foreign Affairs

WASHINGTON.—With the present condition of mind existing in Europe, President Coolidge sees little or nothing to be gained from an endeavor to hold a world economic conference.

The view of Mr. Coolidge is that it would be useless even to start in motion steps looking toward an economic conference until there were assurances that some success would attend the discussions. Many questions foremost in conflict in Europe are recognized by the president as of an economic nature but a number of them in his opinion, are so closely allied with political considerations that a meeting of the representatives of the nations of the world would do little to remove the conflicts.

Won't Press Proposal

The American government, having presented to the nations of Europe the proposal that an international commission be formed to ascertain Germany's ability to pay reparations, will wait until that proposition and no further steps to bring it to the attention of European nations will be made.

Business Optimist

Although not desiring to pose as a prophet, President Coolidge regards the business future of the country as promising and looks for a continuation of present conditions which he believes on the whole are good.

The president has received through cabinet members, leaders in industry and agriculture and representatives of labor, information which has enabled him to make a survey of the economic condition of the country. From these reports the future may be indicated to a certain extent, in the president's opinion, and his belief is that there need be no apprehension as to the continuance of present conditions. The reports received by the president show corn prices are high; the price of range cattle not as high as might be desired; the price of fat cattle satisfactory; good orders in the textile industry; and plentiful employment for workers in the steel and iron industry.

BLAINE CALLS IN EMERGENCY BOARD ON TAX REMISSION

MADISON, Wis.—Governor Blaine Tuesday called a meeting of the emergency board to be held in the executive office at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. A statement given out by the governor, September 26, said that he planned to have the emergency board remit $1,150,000 in state taxes to the counties, because of the condition of the general fund in the state treasury.

The car was towed to La Crosse by the Elsen and Phillips wrecker.

CHICAGO, Ill.—With initial steps taken for the organization of a national co-operative marketing association as the solution of the wheat problem, Eugene Meyer, Jr., managing director of the war finance corporation, planned Tuesday to leave at once for Minneapolis.

There, Wednesday, he is expected to meet representatives of the producing, marketing and financial ends of the wheat business for further conferences in line with instructions from President Coolidge.

WASHINGTON.—Managing Director Meyer and Director Mondell of the war finance corporation telegraphed President Coolidge that their conference in Chicago with leaders in the co-operative marketing movement was "highly successful and most promising," as a step toward promoting the co-operative marketing of wheat.

CHICAGO.—By the Associated Press. — Lifting the wheat farmer from his present slough of financial difficulties and low prices to the level of the cotton and tobacco growers by the same means that lifted them—co-operative marketing on a national scale—was decided upon Monday by representative co-operative and agricultural leaders called into conference, as the best means of correcting the present national wheat situation.

Immediate survey of the six principal wheat growing states with the view in mind of working through present facilities where they exist and creating them where they are not, was voted by the conference which resolved itself into a permanent committee and elected an executive committee with former Governor Frank O. Lowden as chairman to carry on the work.

Other Leaders Invited

Robert W. Bingham of Louisville, a leader in the tobacco co-operative marketing movement and present chairman of the national council of Farmers' Co-operative Marketing Associations, who called the conference, invited such co-operative leaders as Carl Williams of Oklahoma City, president of the American Cotton Growers' exchange; Aaron Sapiro of New York and San Francisco, organizer of the California Fruit Growers and numerous other co-operative groups; George C. Jewett, general manager of the Northwest Wheat Growers' association, and others.

Pledges U. S. Support

Eugene Meyer, Jr., managing director of the war finance corporation; Frank Mondell, another director, and M. G. Yohe, of the bureau of agricultural economics, appointed by President Coolidge to investigate the wheat situation, sat in the conference, and following its conclusion declared they saw in co-operative marketing the real solution of the wheat problem, and assured the committee of the support of the administration and of the governmental agencies that may be able to help the plan.

REICHSTAG BACKS UP STRESEMANN

Vote Today on Proposal to Give Him Dictatorial Powers in Present Emergency

UPPER HOUSE APPROVES REQUEST FOR AUTHORITY

Hands are Strengthened by Vote Condemning
Bavaria

BERLIN.—By The Associated Press. —The reichstag Monday night passed a vote of confidence in the Stresemann government against the German nationalists, the Bavarian people's party and the communists.

A resolution in favor of abolishing the state emergency in the reich and Bavaria was rejected. A socialist motion endorsing the government's constitutional standpoint regarding exceptional measures in Bavaria was carried.

Draft Bill Adopted

The reichstag on Monday adopted the draft bill of the authorization law asked by Chancellor Stresemann, by virtue of which he would receive sweeping authority in dictating economic measures. Bavaria and some of the Prussian provinces voted against the bill.

The reichstag is the imperial council formed by representatives of the component states in the German republic.

The vote on the bill was 46 to 17. The bill authorizes the government of the reich to take measures it considers necessary and urgent in financial, economic and social matters. It power, however, would not extend so far as to effect the law regulating working hours. The new law would become invalid by March 31, or upon a change in the government.

Before Reichstag

The reichstag will deal with the bill on Tuesday.

Chancellor Stresemann's victory in obtaining a vote of confidence was strengthened by the rejection of a resolution to abolish the state of emergency in the reich and in Bavaria, and by the passage of a socialist resolution endorsing the government constitutional attitude toward exceptional measures in Bavaria.

Industrialists Want Long Day

Drastic demands were made of the German government Tuesday by the group of Ruhr industrialists headed by Hugo Stinnes, who recently were in consultation with General De Goutle, French commander-in-chief at Dusseldorf.

Authority to continue negotiations with the occupation officials in the Ruhr was one demand.

Provisions for longer working hours for German workers was another.

The demands were handed to the government by Herr Stinnes. He asked an answer by noon. A meeting of the cabinet took them under consideration early in the morning.

Ask Pay for Seized Coal

The industrialists also demanded compensation for the coal confiscated since the beginning of the Ruhr occupation and for the forcibly levied coal tax; the abolition of the coal tax for the Ruhr region; a guarantee that all future deliveries of reparations coal be placed in their hands; preferential treatment for the Ruhr in supplies of raw materials and foodstuffs.

The working hours underground, if the industrialists demands were granted, would be 8 1/2 hours and above ground ten hours.

The industrialists also asked what the government's attitude would be toward the creation of a railway company in the occupied territory in which the Rhineland, France and industry would participate.

It is reported from Essen that the Franco-Belgian occupation authorities have presented the railway workers with an ultimatum, expiring on Monday, demanding that they either agree to resume work or be expelled from the occupied region.

More than 50,000 men are said to be affected by the demand.

NEW WING TYPE GAVE NAVY PLANE ITS EXTRA SPEED

Expert Reveals Double Camber
Design of Victorious
Plane

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Double camber wings, which increased the lower and upper lifting surfaces of the plane, enabled the United States navy airplane to attain unprecedented speed of more than four miles a minute in the Pulitzer speed event of the international air races here last Saturday. Commander Marc A. Mitscher, U. S. N., who was in charge of the navy entrants, declared Tuesday.

Asked to explain why the Curtiss racing planes which were flown by the navy entrants made much faster time than the same kind of machines flown by army aviators, Commander Mitscher disclosed that double camber wings of convex on both sides of the wings, which the army planes were not equipped with were responsible for the feat.

He said that the navy planes traveled as high as 30 miles faster per hour as a result of the wings, which, he added, were a new invention in airplane construction.

French Optimistic

PARIS.—By The Associated Press. —French officials circles were frankly optimistic Tuesday over the situation in the Ruhr for the first time since the announcement in Berlin of the cessation of passive resistance.

An accord signed between the French commission on mine control and representatives of the leading German industrialists Monday at Dusseldorf providing for the immediate resumption of coal deliveries on the reparations account, is regarded as a real step toward solution of the reparations tangle.

The French government will refer the accord to the reparations commission for its information and for any action it sees fit to take concerning the bearing of the accord on the commission's prerogatives. The Bel-

PUPILS OF RURAL SCHOOLS TREATED TO DAY IN VIROQUA

Two Hundred and Fifty See Business Houses and Enjoy Dinner and Movie

VIROQUA.—Two hundred and fifty, seventh and eighth grade pupils from the rural schools, accompanied by their teachers, accepted the invitation to come to Viroqua on Saturday, October 6th to visit the county offices at the court house, the banks, and various other business places. The visitors gathered at the County Normal at 10:00 a. m. and were divided into nine groups, each accompanied by a guide. They then marched to the court house where the remainder of the forenoon was spent in visiting the county offices. As the groups visited each office the officer in charge explained to the visitors the service that his office was rendering to the people of the county. The young people found the jail with its paraphernalia for taking care of criminals and insane persons the place of greatest interest. Dinner was served by the County Normal in the American Legion Auxiliary hall.

At 1:30 p. m. the visitors were conducted to the three banks where they were shown the vaults, the strong box, and all of the equipment of modern banking. The service that a bank renders to a community was explained. After this, the visitors filed through the press room of the Vernon County Censor and saw the lin-type machine and the big press in operation. Each one was given a slug made in the linotype machine bearing the words Vernon County Censor. Next the visitors were conducted to the two bakeries where they saw the mixing machines and the ovens. Several business places were visited where souvenirs were given out. Moments of the day were given by the Sanitary Bakery, Kuebler Deleo Light Shop, Sauer Hardware, Davis Drug Store, and the Vernon Co. Censor.

The day closed with a delightful matinee program at the Temple Theatre. Manager B. C. Brown, true to form, put on a snappy entertaining program which was received by the visitors with screams of delight. "Our Gang" will long be remembered. Some children among the visitors had never visited the county seat before and some had never seen a movie. The students and faculty of the Vernon County Normal wish to thank every one who helped in making the day a success.

TRUE HOLINESS

PUT on the true man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness.—Ephesians 4: 24.

Mr. Rockefeller's Start

THE elder John D. Rockefeller's first business deal was unearthen in connection with his 84th birthday recently. John D. was born four miles from the village of Richmond, N. Y. He was raised on a farm, tramped six miles to the little red schoolhouse, and slept in an attic through whose roof the snow sifted in winter. That old house still is standing, hewn from logs and fastened together by wooden pins, as was customary in the old days when iron nails were very expensive. John D. saw a wild turkey hen in the woods. By patient stalking, he finally found her nest. He carried away her young ones, took them home and fattened them. Late in the year he drove his flock to the village and sold them. He put the money in the bank, of course.

One day afterward, while digging potatoes, young John D. leaned on his hoe and began thinking. It occurred to him that he had to till the soil several days to get as much money as his "turkey fund" was paying him a year in interest, and for which interest he didn't have to work a stroke. John D. withdrew his money from the bank and invested it in turkey hens. After that, it was a matter of multiplication.

From his turkey venture, the elder Rockefeller learned a lesson that shaped his entire business career. During his lifetime he probably has made, as profits, more than a billion dollars. He could not have made anything like this huge amount by his own personal direct efforts. That he did accumulate a billion was principally due to his causing money and other men to work for him.

Too sensible to be jealous of having able supporters around him, he early acquired a reputation for hiring the most competent men available—and paying them so liberally that no other employer could lure them away except in relatively few cases.

If you work for money and save it, money will work for you. If you work for money and save it, you will be able to hire other men to work for you—able to collect part of what they create, for your own personal holdings. The Rockefeller fortune was built up mainly on these two simple principles. The first $1,000 in the bank is the hardest—and we are apt to become discouraged while accumulating it. But, the more you save, the easier money comes.

Absurdity

MANY people will sympathize with Congressman Britten of Illinois who wrote to the shipping board protesting against the printing of menus on the American liner Leviathan entirely in French. Not only on ship-board does this atrocious custom prevail, and not only on ship-board have audacious souls discovered that, when put to the test, even the head-waiter can only guess what certain of the dishes might be in English. This French menu business is one of the hold-overs from the days when this country was so uncertain of itself that it was held necessary for elegance to ape foreign customs. That day has long passed, so far as the huge majority of the people of the country are concerned. Most of us find not only that America and its ways are good enough for us, but that foreign countries and their ways are not good enough. We have a cuisine as distinctly our own as the "made dishes" of France or the roast beef of England. And it is just plain foolish to try to describe pumpkin pie or waffles in French. It becomes even more foolish to do it on a government-owned liner, and the height of absurdity is reached when the menus for the third-class passengers, most of whom are immigrants from abroad coming to this country, are printed in English, which many of them can not read, while the Americans in the first-cabin have to pick out their food in a foreign language in most cases equally strange. The only valid argument in either case would seem to be that it makes good language practice for the traveler—but that is hardly sufficient excuse for the risk of getting a salad when one wants soup.

Three of a Kind

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

For several years Marcia Glen Cora Bassett and Jerry St. Claire had taught adjoining rooms in the Webster Grammar school and were popularly supposed to possess similar tastes along all lines. They did enjoy the same books and plays, shared the same views regarding art, men and the arrangement of flowers; stressed the same arguments in favor of the single life.

Only in one respect did they differ, and that was on the subject of the most desirable spot in which to pass the annual summer vacation.

Had you saveddropped from Mrs. Bates' living room one June evening as the three chatted on the porch you would have heard them expressing their opinions thereupon along with Mrs. Bates' other boarders, from the Trumbull twins to Lacy Haskell, the eccentric bachelor who was so well-to-do that he had two halves of cantaloupe every morning by special order.

Marcia delivered herself definitely. "My hay fever will not stand any place but Bretton Woods. You know that, girls. I do wish you both—"

"It's futile to urge me," interrupted Cora briskly. "The surf, the crowds, the boardwalk—oh, what you miss shutting yourself up in the mountains! Ocean Grove for mine!"

Jerry, the youngest of the trio, swung a trimly shot foot from the couch hammock. "I," she told them, "am trying a new place. Oh, another Adirondack lake, of course. Couldn't miss the canoeing, August bass, etc. Finger Lake Inn—that will be my address."

This matter disposed of, the three turned to other subjects. One thing leading to another, the imminent wedding of a mutual acquaintance was arrived at.

"No more European trips for her," sighed Cora. "Her future husband doesn't make the money she does now!"

"What she can see in him worth the loss of her freedom and good times, beats me!" declared the decisive Jerry. "When I find a man that's such a paragon I'd sacrifice my entire life to be with him. I'll—I'll marry him."

"You're safe for a while," laughed Marcia comfortably. "I fancy we all are. Our married friends are not a stimulant to imitation. I wouldn't marry the best man living!"

"Nor I!" said Cora.

"Nor I!" said Jerry, explosively. In the living room the audience, forgotten by the three outside, listened shamelessly. The twins giggled. Lacy Haskell puffed thoughtfully at his cigar. He wondered now. He wondered. And he took out a little note-book and made three entries: Bretton Woods; Ocean Grove; Finger Lake Inn.

The morning following Marcia's arrival at her usual boarding place in the White Mountains she spent in putting away her carefully assembled wardrobe. That afternoon she selected a crisp coat of orange, flounced and sashed, descended to the veranda and ran into Lacy Haskell imperceptibly regarding a presidential peak and looking very attractive in flannels.

He explained his presence, vaguely, but straightway dated up Marcia for tennis that afternoon, and from that moment proceeded to make such inroads upon her time that she lay awake nights wondering. Particularly as he had let her know almost deliberately that he never intended to marry, was a confirmed woman hater and an inveterate egotist!

Marcia was piqued, interested, beguiled. She evaded him, enduring him, and it must be confessed, at length pursued him. When in the course of casual conversation she hinted marriage would be the making of him, Lacy fled precipitately on the evening train. He smiled as he made a cross beside the first little entry in his notebook.

Three days later he was giving the boardwalk procession at Ocean Grove a critical survey. By his side Miss Cora Bassett beamed and glowed. True, Lacy had just been telling her of his pet aversion to marriage and the female sex in general. Yet wasn't he full of plans for the next few days which included her? Who could tell what might fall out? Cora all but clung to his arm, laughed heartily at his jokes, sent him oblique, coquetish glances.

That very evening another cross went into Lacy's little booklet and he nodded with satisfaction. And as soon as he had fulfilled his obligations with Cora he checked out and headed north. His baggage was labeled for Finger Lake Inn.

Somehow or other, when Lacy from the stern of a canoe looked at the slim, knicker-clad Jerry his pattern about confirmed bachelorhood and distrust of her sex sounded rather insane. In the days that followed he found himself involved in a strange predicament. Jerry did not respond as the other two had to his attentions and the cooler she grew the more he wished she grew warmer. Soon he had forgotten that he was making a personally conducted experiment to prove that the woman didn't exist who would refuse any reputable man's attentions.

He wanted Jerry for his wife and wanted her very much.

One afternoon—and he noticed it shortly after the arrival of the mail—Jerry was so very upish to him that his hopes felt thuddingly and he decided to know the worst.

She had already promised to go canoeing and he held her to her word. Guiding the craft to a sheltered cove sweet with evergreens, he reined his paddle across the gunwales and gazed somberly into Jerry's blue gray eyes. Listlessly he put the age old question, sadly sure of the answer.

Followed a silence—then bitter speech from the girl. "Are you playing with me as you did with Marcia and, as I heard this morning, with Cora as well? They both write how only the most desperate measures warranted off a proposal."

Whatever were Lacy's inmost thoughts, he kept them to himself and rose like a hero to the occasion. There was but one road to take, that of confession, and he traveled it gallantly from beginning to end. Twilight was dimming the lake when Jerry saw fit to forgive him, and they were started on their homeward way when Lacy, lifted to the seventh heaven, grinned teasingly.

"Perhaps by experiments did fail

WEEKLY BOOK REVIEW

DEAN REVIEWS
THE HAWKEYE, by Herbert Quick (Bobbs-Merrill).

BY JAMES W. DEAN

NEW YORK.—Herbert Quick has lifted the plains and the plain people of early Iowa to mountain heights of romance in his latest novel, "The Hawkeye."

Here is a book of deep historical and economic significance. It is a text-book on the early development of America and as such should find a pre-eminent place on the reading lists of the upper grade and high schools.

There are many pictures in this book, pictures of situations and persons that are fast passing from the scene of American life, pictures that should be preserved so that future generations may have some conception of the travail and glory in which this nation was born.

One such picture is that of the birth of Fremont McKinley, hero in "The Hawkeye." As Quick tells it, "While the poor mother lay in bed with little Fremont by her side, she could look through a hole in the roof and see the great white stars serenely burning their golden lamps in the sky, while she heard the whelping of the hungry wolves outside."

The boy grew older. People thought him a bit "queer," for he had the soul of a poet and the imagination of an artist. As he herded cattle upon the plains he read everything readable that came to him. He grew like a tumbleweed until he was a gangling clothopper whose head was in the clouds as he followed his plow or taught school at the cross-roads.

He had planned to go to college and become a writer when fate, for circumstances, call it what you will, swept him at once into politics and love. He married, settled down in an Iowa town and became a deputy county clerk under his father-in-law. The poet's wings were clipped.

There was cooperation in county politics. Rooders, grafters, were jockeying with public monies.

Fremont quit politics and became editor of a small newspaper. In the meantime he had been reading law and was admitted to the bar. Also, in the meantime, his wife had died, leaving two children.

Fremont married his sister-in-law because she loved the children as much as he did, and if the group were not to be broken up they would have to be married to satisfy the conventions of community life. They lived as brother and sister.

All of these things were very consequential factors entering into the development of the story's hero. Into the evolution of the story the author brings a discussion of the political and economical evolution of the country. He does it without the hollow show of patriotic fervor which characterizes so many historical romances. He recognizes in the body politic the frailties that are analogous to and dependent on human frailties. He also has suggestions for remedies that will prevent the weaknesses of individuals from affecting governments or communities.

Quick's candor is amazing and refreshing. He confesses that a night-shirt was a rare thing among Iowa farmers. The lack of a night-shirt was a source of a considerable embarrassment to the hero, when he began to move in the higher circles of county society.

And the dudes used to send their cuffs to Rochester, N. Y., to have them laundered. Their collars were paper and bought by the dozen.

And when a mother had seven or eight children they were more than likely to go without a bath for several months through the winter.

The fathers of most of us native-born Americans could tell us of similar conditions in their lives. Some of them do, but few of this generation repeat the tales.

There can be little doubt that Quick's picture of early Iowa is as accurate as a photograph. Look him up in "Who's Who." You'll find that he was born near Steamboat Rock, Grundy county, Iowa, in 1867. He was reared on a farm, attended country schools, taught school and studied law, became an associate editor and was in politics and prosecuted bootleggers.

Well, well, it isn't difficult to conceive that little Fremont McKinley, receiving newspapers and periodicals from neighbors and with the ambition to be a writer burning in his breast, was little Herbie Quick!

"The Hawkeye" must be largely autobiographical, although Quick has borrowed the love element from imagination, or someone of those acquaintance.

And as this review is ended with the endorsement that "The Hawkeye" should be read by this and successive generations for a fuller perspective of the nation's growth, it must be added that the climatic romance of the book is as novel and as tender a love story as can be found in life or in fiction.

INVITATIONS TO COLLEGE CLUB TEA ARE OUT

Tea For New Members to Be First Meeting of College Club this Season

Invitations have been issued by the College club, for the tea for new members, which will be given at the home of Miss Helen Dorset, 330 South Sixth street, from three to six o'clock, Saturday, October 13th. During the afternoon some interesting announcements will be made concerning the activities of the club for the coming year.

This is the first meeting of the year for the College club and it is hoped that there will be many new members this year. The last meeting, which took place before the close of school in June, was held at the Baldwin farm. Many of the teachers in the La Crosse schools are members of the club, and there are many of the new teachers who are eligible for membership this year.

Household Suggestions

FOR THE SOUP POT

Save the leaves from celery and parsley for the soup pot. They can be dried in the oven and kept in a jar till needed.

TO CLEAN MATTING

First sweep matting with the grain of the straw, then crosswise with a broom dipped in warm water and shaken very dry. To brighten matting, wash it quickly with tepid water in which a handful of salt has been dissolved. Rinse with clear water.

AIR THE LINENS

In damp weather open the door to the linen closet an hour each day.

FEATHER BEDS

Feathers in pillows and feather beds may be freshened by allowing them to get wet in a summer rain and then sunning for a week.

TAKING UP CARPET

To take up a carpet, first sweep and wipe it, then remove the tacks and fold one-half upon the other. Sweep the exposed underside with a damp broom. Fold again and repeat until the whole carpet is folded into a pile handy for lifting.

MUSLIN LININGS

Baskets used in the laundry should have adjustable muslin linings. The linings may be easily washed and keep soil from the basket from getting on the clean clothes.

UNUSUAL POCKETS

One of the novel dresses worn by a chic Parisienne at Deauville was of petunia velvet made without a belt in tunic form, with the hem turned up about a foot from the bottom to form huge pockets.

"I'll show you a REAL Shampoo!"

If your hair is dull, stiff and gummy, you need a Jap Rose Shampoo.

JAP ROSE
Removes every trace of dandruff and keeps the hair looking soft, thick and glossy. Lathers instantly—leaves no sediment.

Sister Mary's KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY GRAPES

All sorts of delicious preserves and jellies can be made with grapes. Personally, I think there is no grape like the Concord. However, this is a matter of "taste." Whatever variety of grape is at hand can be used.

Pectin (which forms jellies) is found in all fruits but is at its best when the fruit is not quite ripe. This is peculiarly true with grapes. As the grapes ripen more sugar is formed and ripe grapes are too rich in sugar to make perfect jelly. Choose fruit that is just beginning to turn to make a firm grape jelly that will be free from crystallization.

The weather has much to do with the properties of fruit. A dry, hot summer means a fruit richer in sugar than a cold, wet season. If fruit is gathered after a rain there will be more water to boil out, to obtain the pure fruit juice.

These things should be taken into consideration and allowed for in boiling the juice and the proportion of sugar used.

Grape Jelly

Wash and pick over grapes. Remove from stems and put in preserving kettle. There will probably be enough water on the fruit to prevent burning. Crush a few with a wooden potato masher and bring slowly to the boiling point, shaking the kettle to prevent sticking. When the grapes are hot crush with the potato masher, and simmer for thirty minutes. Put in jelly bag and let the juice drip. If a clear, sparkling jelly is desired, do not squeeze the bag. Let drip as long as there is any juice. Measure juice and put in preserving kettle. Boil gently for eight minutes and add as much sugar as there was juice. Boil five minutes and pour into sterilized jelly glasses. Cover with paraffin when cold.

Grape Conserve

Five pounds grapes, 5 pounds sugar, 1 pound raisins, 3 oranges, 1 cup chopped nut meats.

Wash grapes and remove from stems and then pulp. Put pulp and skins separately. Put pulp through strainer to remove seeds. Add to skins with sugar juice of oranges and grated rind of one and one-half oranges and raisins. Cook fifteen minutes and add nuts. Cook five minutes longer or until thick. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses and cover with paraffin when cold.

Grape Relish

Four pounds grapes, 4 pounds brown sugar, 3 cups vinegar, 2 teaspoons allspice, 2 teaspoons cloves, 3 teaspoons cinnamon, 2 teaspoons nutmeg.

Wash grapes and remove from stems. Put all ingredients in preserving kettle and cook until soft, about forty-five minutes. Rub through a colander. Boil pulp until thick and pour into sterilized jelly glasses.

Spiced Grapes

Five pounds grapes, 2 1/2 pounds sugar, 3 teaspoons cinnamon, 2 teaspoons allspice, 1/2 teaspoon cloves, 1 cup elder vinegar.

Pulp grapes and boil skins until tender. Cook pulp and put through strainer to remove seeds. Add to skins with sugar, spices and vinegar. Boil for ten minutes. Pour into sterilized pint jars and seal.

BIRTHS

A daughter, Mary, 8 1/2 pounds, was born to Mr. and Mrs. N. J. McGaughey, 1803 Kane street, Tuesday, October 2, at St. Ann's hospital.

THEIR COLORS MATCH

Belts and handbags of matching leather in bright red, blue or green are very smart this season.

BLACK AND GOLD

Gold lace embroidered in black makes the lining of a very gorgeous coat of black velvet.

PLANS BEING MADE FOR FIRST ANNUAL LOCAL HOMECOMING

Entire Normal School is Working on Committees to Make the Event a Success

Plans are rapidly being completed for the first annual homecoming of the La Crosse Normal school, which will be held on October 13. A pep assembly was held this morning at the assembly hall. Songs and yells were tried out and practiced.

Prof. Robert Nohr, Jr., who is in charge of the bonfire that will be held near the Normal campus on Friday night, announced that every student and faculty member should start gathering wood and fire material so that the fire could be one worth while. A pep meeting will be held around the fire on Friday night. The parade will be in charge of the "11" men of the school.

Arrangements have been made for the school to turn out and meet the Lawrence aggregation on the 5:15 Milwaukee train on Friday evening. The Lawrence headquarters will be at the La Crosse hotel. Every effort is being made to accommodate the visiting team.

Tickets are now being sold for the physical education course banquet, which will be held at the school on Thursday evening in honor of Dr. Carl Smith, founder of the physical education department of the local school.

Tags for home coming will be sold under the direction of Miss Anna Wentz and Miss Lenora Thompson. They will be assisted by Miss Evelyn Zeimer.

SAYS WORDLINESS IS GETTING HOLD UPON THE CHURCH

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — Violence, revelry and drunkenness are converting the churches of the world instead of the churches converting the world to them, according to a statement made in the opening address of the world conference of Seventh Day Adventists by Prof. C. W. Irwin, secretary of the educational department, here, Monday.

A great campaign must be inaugurated to re-establish confidence among the students attending the Seventh Day Adventist colleges and academies, as well as in the certainty of the early coming of Christ, Prof. Irwin said.

The schools themselves are not to be held entirely responsible for the sinning of young men in the ministry, the speaker said. Where the denomination now has 2,267 ministers, it should have 5,200 in proportion to the membership, he maintained.

AVIATOR HALF ASLEEP AS HE SETS NEW RECORD FOR SPEED IN NAVY AIRPLANE

Ensign A. J. Williams, navy flyer, and his navy Curtiss racer.

ST. LOUIS. — By the Associated Press.—Lieut. A. J. Williams was "half asleep" on Saturday when he hurtled through the air at more than 240 miles an hour, thereby setting the world's speed record and winning the Pulitzer air race here.

This was revealed here on Sunday by Lieut. Williams at a smoker at which trophies were presented to the winners of the various races held. Before he started, Lieut. Williams told those present, he had put chalk marks, one for each lap, on his instrument board, but the strain was so tremendous and the vibration of the plane so terrific that he evidently forgot to wipe out a chalk mark, for he flew the course five times instead of four.

Ambition of Years
Describing his sensations, Lieut. Williams added that the vibrations of the plane were terrible and that each "bump" in the air threw his shoulders against the cockpit, snapped his head back and forth so sharply that he did not, after flying one lap, "know what it was all about."

Speaking to newspaper men, he said: "Really I do not know how I did it. Winning this race was my one and only ambition. I have been flying for six years with the thought of winning the world's speed classic, the Pulitzer trophy, always uppermost in my mind."

"I flew over the course exactly twenty-six times and knew every telephone pole and haystack around the thirty miles of it. I did not fear a forced landing, but wanted to cut every corner and get every mile out of the ship. To do this I have been practicing a new turn for flying at that terrific speed. Last year Lieut. R. L. Maughan, in taking the turns round the pylons, became unconscious, due to the tremendous centrifugal force as he turned at a speed of over 200 miles an hour.

Figured Out Turn
"Figuring the thing all ways and, unable to get any information from flight surgeons or aeronautical engineers, due to the fact that no one knew, I attempted to try a turn that would not affect me physically and at the same time would not cut off from my speed."

"Finally I succeeded in perfecting an even, wide and gentle turn. While this carried me several miles off my course, it nevertheless did not detract to any great extent from my speed. "All I can say is that I am content to have realized my ambition and won the Pulitzer trophy for the United States navy."

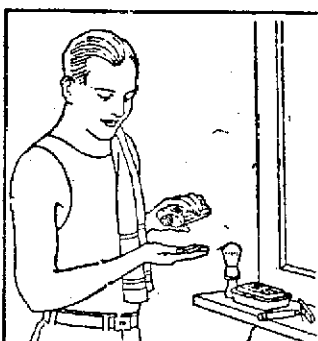

Differing with Lieut. Williams,

Lieut. H. J. Brow, United States navy entrant who came in second with an average speed of 241.78 miles, declared that he "had no thrill" and experienced no unusual sensation in rounding the course.

Made 247 Miles Hour
Commander Marc A. Mitschner, commanding the naval detachment here, said that a check on Williams' speed showed that on the straight-away between pylons he attained a speed of better than 247 miles an hour.

Commenting on the new world's speed record made by Williams, men prominent in aviation declared that the limit of air speed had not yet been reached and that a speed of at least 300 miles an hour might be expected at the next air race meet in 1924.

How to Shed Aged or Unsightly Complexion

We cannot restore degenerated facial tissue any more than we can restore a lost limb. It is useless to attempt to convert a worn-out complexion into a new one. The rational procedure is to remove the degenerated tissue—remove the devitalized cuticle. Not by surgical means, however, as the underlying cutis is too thin, too tender, to withstand immediate exposure. Applying ordinary mercurized wax will gradually absorb the offending cuticle. By degrees, a new, youthful skin appears; a skin soft and delicately tinted as a rose petal.

No lady need hesitate to try this. Procure an ounce of mercurized wax of the druggist. Spread on a thin layer before retiring, removing in the morning with soap and water. Soon the old complexion will have vanished.

How to tell for sure —what oil your car needs

No. 9 in the series

Perhaps you own a Maxwell

If you don't own a Maxwell, cut this out and hand it to a friend who does

The late model Maxwell engines are designed with force feed lubricating systems in which oil is forced under pressure to the three main bearings. Holes drilled in the crankshaft carry the oil under pressure from the main bearings to the connecting rod bearings. The other moving parts are lubricated by the oil mist which is created when the oil is forced out through the close clearances at the ends of the connecting rod bearings.

The oil circulating pump is of the impeller type and is located at the camshaft level, drawing its supply through a pipe connecting with a strainer in the oil reservoir.

Aluminum pistons of the constant clearance type are employed. The skirt or bearing part of this type of piston is slotted on one side to provide for expansion under heat and therefore permits the use of close clearances. In addition, horizontal slots are cut through the piston below the lower ring to permit the free return of oil from the cylinder walls.

With the effective control of the oil supply which is secured by this oil return provision on the pistons, the possibility of carbon formation is minimized. In addition, the characteristics of aluminum as a piston material tend to prevent the fuel knock which often occurs when carbon deposits accumulate.

Where natural circulation of the cooling water (thermo-siphon system) is employed as in the Maxwell design, it is desirable to use in warm weather an oil which is suitable for fairly high operating temperatures. Such an oil will be thoroughly atomized and distributed by the Maxwell lubricating system under the conditions of summer operation.

To assure circulation of the lubricating oil in cold weather, the use of an oil which flows freely at low temperatures is necessary because of the elevated location of the oil pump with its long connection to the oil reservoir.

To meet correctly these and other important lubrication features of the Maxwell design, we recommend for the 1922 and 1923 models, the use of Gargoyle Mobiloil "A" in summer and Gargoyle Mobiloil Arctic in winter. For the 1921 and earlier models, Gargoyle Mobiloil Arctic should be used both summer and winter.

BOOSTER DAY PLANNED IN CONNECTION WITH ST. PAUL GAME

HOLD MEETING TO ORGANIZE ADVANCE SEAT SALE DRIVE

Entire City and Surrounding Towns and Villages to be Covered

ENTIRE PERSONNEL OF CLUB TO COME HERE WITH ST. PAUL

Club is Most Talked of Aggregation in the Association

The management of the La Crosse Nelson baseball club is planning a big booster day in connection with the game which will be the last game of the season at Capeland park Sunday, the attraction being the battle with the St. Paul American association club.

At a meeting of ardent followers of the game and boosters for the big game here Sunday held at the Elks' club last night, organization of an advance seat sale drive was effected. Captains of eighteen teams to conduct the selling campaign were named and through this organization the entire city will be covered. In addition there were three teams appointed to make the baseball centers of the surrounding towns and villages.

Cover Surrounding Towns

Territory within a radius of fifty miles of La Crosse will be covered in the advance seat sale campaign and it is predicted that the entire grandstand, which is being reserved for the advance sale, will be sold out long before the end of the week.

Every holder of a ticket is assured a seat in the grandstand, according to the management of officials, who said that when the capacity of the grandstand is reached the ticket sale will stop. The bleachers on either end of the stand will be held for sale at the box office next morning.

Carry Whole Personnel

The Associated Press dispatch and a letter received by the local management states that the entire personnel of the club will be carried on this trip. They will have with them such stars as Tom Sheehan, Cliff Markle, Mike Gonzalez, with former New York Charles Dressen and all the others that have made the St. Paul team the most talked of club that the association has ever boosted.

PAYED ROADS AND AUTO BRINGS THE FARMER TO STADIUM

CHICAGO, Ill.—Paved roads streaking across mid-western states making automobiles a pleasure rather than a hardship, have become an important factor in filling the huge football stadium in the western conference this season with a new type of football roster—the farmers.

Farmers do not worry about driving fifty miles to see a football game, returning home the same night. Mayor John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics of the "Big Ten," said today: "At one of the important town games, automobiles from every community in the state were parked around the field, he said."

SPORT BRIEFS

AMES, Iowa.—Jack Trice of Cleveland, Ohio, a sophomore at the Iowa state college and tackle on the football team, died from injuries sustained in the Minnesota-AMES game at Minneapolis Saturday.

NEW ORLEANS.—The scheduled fifteen round bout between Bob Marshall of New York, heavyweight champion of the A. E. F., and Martin Sisco of New Orleans, was stopped in the seventh round by the referee and Sisco was awarded the decision.

NEWARK, N. J.—The bout between Jimmy Jones, recognized in New York state as a welterweight champion of the world, and Mickey Walker, generally conceded the lighter states other than New York, was stopped at the end of the fifth round by Chief Boxing Inspector Adams, who said neither fighter was making a real effort.

CHICAGO, Ill.—President Chicago's personal physician, announced Monday night that the condition of the chief executive remained the same and that, although he was not seriously ill it would be necessary for the patient to leave the extreme altitude of Mexico City for a lower altitude before a complete cure of the throat trouble could be expected.

INTENSIVE TRAINING IN ORDER FOR COACH KEELER'S FOOTBALL SQUAD; PREPARE FOR LAWRENCE

Intensive training is in order on the Normal field in preparation for the first annual homecoming game with Lawrence college which will be played on the local field Saturday afternoon. The men are reporting at 3 o'clock for practice this week and keep going until 6 or 6:30 o'clock. Coach "Tubby" Keeler is with the men and is putting them through their paces and bringing out the best play there is in each man.

Yesterday the men practised perfecting plays. With Kevin and Jorgenson as quarterbacks with their respective squads the teams made good progress. The plays are put over in a pretty manner and a fumble is seldom to be noted.

Scrimmage shows the team as one of the hardest hitting that "Tubby" has ever produced. The men buck the line and hit with all their might. At the rate of speed they are going now, by the end of the week Coach Keeler will have a formidable eleven to oppose the Collegians.

The men are all eagerly looking forward to the coming battle and are eager to take on the Lawrence eleven.

"Toby" Jessup and Hutchins have recovered after their injuries from the game with Winona and are in the best of conditions at the present time.

From all points of view the Kickapoo Valley League has been a success. Every team, it is believed, adhered to the rule that no player was to be hired or receive pay in any form. Financially, the league was a success, also. And in the refereeing column, three of the teams finished within 50 points of the 500 mark and one exactly on it.

The league was organized this spring for ten years and from indications there is little doubt but that all of the present teams and possibly some others will be ready for action in the spring.

UNION GIANTS IN 19 TO 1 VICTORY OVER WESTBY NINE

GIKerson's Union Giants defeated Westby, 19 to 1, and knocked Big Ben out of the box at Westby last Sunday. The only score tallied by Westby was a home run by the catcher. The Giants play at Chippewa Falls Wednesday against the St. Paul club.

FANS POURING INTO GOTHAM FOR WORLD SERIES; PREDICT DOPE BUCKET WILL BE TIPPED

NEW YORK.—The respective chances of the Giants and Yankees in their third world series were being discussed Monday night by the usual vanguard of players, writers and fans, coming from the thousand and one baseball corners of the continent.

Everybody has a different opinion regarding the whys and wherefores of the Yankees and strong points of the teams, but the general idea seems to be that as in the previous two series, all the dope will be turned upside down.

The Yankees, as in 1921 and 1922, have by, oh far the strongest pitching staff on paper. The five regular hurlers on the Huggins staff, Jones, Pennock, Bush, Hoyt and Shawkey, have worked in twice as many complete games as Scott, Neft, Watson, Bentley, McQuillan and Ryan of the Giants. Yet in 1922 when the same sort of condition obtained, McGraw's pitchers were the best in the series.

It is believed by many that Ruth, the axis about which the Yankee machine revolves, will lead his teammates to their first world title. In 1921 and 1922 Ruth was a stunning disappointment in the series.

Without this batting ram, the Yankees could not go on. This year, however, Ruth is fresh from the greatest season of his career, a season in which he was the most valuable player of all those in the American league.

The followers of the American league champions have been anxious about Walter Pipp, the first sacker, who injured his ankle in a game at Boston several weeks ago. Pipp, however, joined his team today in practice on Monday and while he betrayed a slight limp, was able to get about speedily and with his accustomed ability. Huggins watched him work, but would not say whether he would start him in the first game on Wednesday. "He looks all right," said Huggins, "but I want to see him work again on Tuesday and then have the doctor examine his ankle."

Should Pipp be unable to play, Huggins probably will send Ruth to first base and Hendricks to Ruth's place in left. Hendricks is the newest of the Yankees, but a hard hitter who Elmer Smith, the veteran upon whom the chance ordinarily would fall, has been weak against left hand pitching, and Huggins desires all the attacking force he can muster against the Giants. Bob Meusel, Ruth's brother gardener, has recovered fully from his ailments and will play.

Stengel on Injured List McGraw's only injured player is Casey Stengel, who got into last year's series shot by McGraw's left arm. Stengel, Jimmy O'Connell, the expensive outfielder from the west, and Cunningham, another youngster, would be used alternately according to whether the pitching is left handed or right.

There still is some speculation about the opening game pitchers. McGraw most probably will call Artie Neft to start, yet there is talk that John Scott, the hero of the 1922 walkaway, may get this honor. Huggins has Jones and Pennock ready.

The Yankee management had announced Monday that all reserved seats for the first, third and fifth games to be played in their stadium had been sold. Ed Barry, the Yankee business manager, predicted that with fair weather the record receipts for a world's series game would be broken in the opening game. Barry said he expected the seat sale for the opener to reach $200,000. The greatest receipts recorded for one game were at the last contest in 1922—$125,147.

NEW YORK.—(By The Associated Press.)—Official announcement of the batting orders for Wednesday's opening game of the third successive all-New York world's series is expected late Tuesday.

The probable announcement will follow the final "polishing up" practice session Tuesday afternoon at the Yankee stadium and the Polo grounds. To these workouts Managers McGraw

THE FULL INFIELD STRENGTH OF THE GIANTS

These are the players who will fill the regular and reserve positions on the Giant infield during the world series. From left to right they are: Kelly, first base; Jackson, reserve; MacGuire, reserve; Frisch, second base; Bancroft, shortstop, and Groh, third base.

FOOTBALL MENTORS BUSY CORRECTING TEAM WEAKNESSES

Want Elevens in First Class for Start of Conference Games this Week

CHICAGO, Ill.—Football mentors of the Big Ten are busy this week correcting weaknesses shown by their elevens in opening games last week to have the teams in readiness for first conference games next Saturday. Illinois, which jumped into championship speculation as a result of its defeat of Nebraska in its opening game Saturday started to strengthen its ends during scrimmage against Butler plays. Butler, next Saturday's opponent, defeated the Illinois last year.

The two most important non-conference games scheduled for Saturday, are the Michigan-Vanderbilt contest and the clash between Ohio State and Colgate.

Coach Ingram of Indiana, the only conference team defeated by a non-conference contender in opening games Saturday, has one of the biggest tasks on his hands to get ready for the clash with Northwestern next Saturday.

Wisconsin and Minnesota, neither of which made a particularly enviable showing Saturday, began a long grind of practice with the Wisconsin homecoming game with Minnesota, October 27, as the goal of both teams. Wisconsin's offense is in need of a lot of improvement, judging by results of its game with Coe, and Minnesota had a line that often crumbled when it was hit.

Purdue and Iowa meet in the only other conference contest scheduled for next Saturday. Iowa is expected to shift its line-up considerably for the Purdue game to plug up the hole left by the injured Krasuski.

FEDERATED PRESS PLAYED AS HOSTILE PROPAGANDA

Service is Declared to Lead Itself to Red Doctrine

PORTLAND, Ore.—By The Associated Press.—The American Federation of Labor in annual convention here resumed Tuesday with delegates knowing exactly the strength of the conservative element because of the developments late yesterday when it came to grips with the radicals. The latter were routed in the unseating of William Dunne of Butte, Mont., for communistic activities by the vote of 27,838 yes, to 130, no. When the "one big union" proposal for amalgamation of unions came up there was not a dissenting vote for this pet measure of the radical wing.

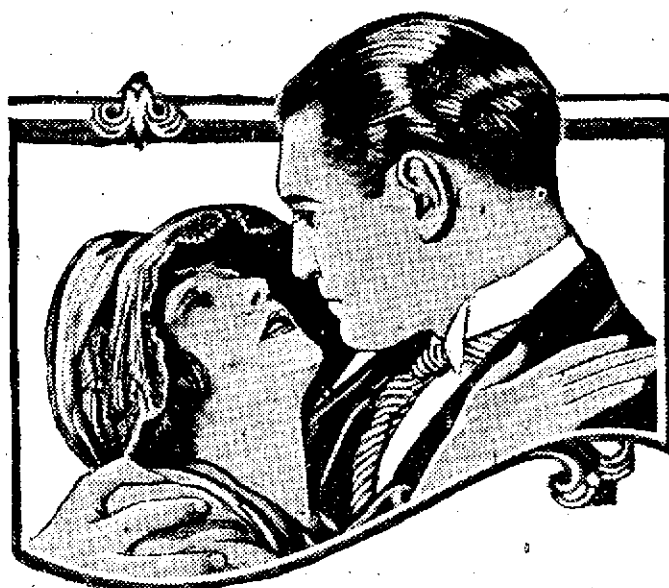

Another issue of a controversial nature, participation of the American Federation of Labor in politics, remained among matters to be disposed of when the convention reassembled Tuesday.

The report of the resolutions committee, including denunciation of the Ku Klux Klan and the fascist movement, was approved before adjournment Monday night.

Score Federated Press
The committee on education, which completed presentation of its report on Monday, commended the executive council of the federation for its findings that the Federated Press, an incorporated organization of labor publications serving 75 publications, "leads itself continuously to the spreading of doctrines subversive to the best interest of the American working people as expressed in the bona fide trade union movement."

The committee on education declared that upon the basis of the findings of the executive council "we feel impelled to recommend that this convention adopt the findings as its own and issue warnings to the trade unions in general and to the labor press in particular, to be on its guard against the insidious encroachment of subversive propaganda either through the Federated Press or any other channel. The Federated Press upon its own record cannot hope to have and should not have the support of trade union publications or of trade union organizations."

BISHOP REFUSES LETTER OFFERED BY K. K. K. IN CHURCH

KITTANNING, Pa.—Bishop F. J. McConell of the Methodist Episcopal church refused a letter offered by the Ku Klux Klan Sunday night by nine hooded and robed members of the Ku Klux Klan. The Klansmen marched down the aisle and the leader offered the bishop an envelope. The bishop declined to accept it, saying: "You have a perfect right to your convictions, but have no right to come into a religious meeting with masks on your faces and you have no right to interrupt a religious service." The Klansmen marched out.

"BRASS BOTTLE"
The costume play and the modern photodrama are curiously and most entertainingly blended at the Rivoli theater for the last times tonight in the showing of Maurice Tourneur's "The Brass Bottle."

From an Egyptian court of more than 6,000 years ago to modern London and back to the sumptuous interior of an ancient Arabian palace the fantastic picture play carries one. There is a young English architect (Harry Myers) and an Arabian Nights genie (Ernest Torrence), a professor (Tully Marshall), a kittenish, blonde English girl (Charlotte Merriam) and the old Egyptian king's stately queen (Barbara La Marr). Yet there isn't a dream, a vision or a "cut-back" in the whole seven reels.

CASINO TODAY

Lingerie plays such an important part in Cecil B. DeMille's production "Saturday Night," which is to be shown at the Casino Theater today, that Care West, fashion designer for Mr. DeMille, was forced to devote the entire attention of her force of seamstresses to the making of these articles of midday's wardrobe for several days prior to production work.

Not all of these dainty bits of feminine apparel are worn in the picture. Most of them serve only as "props" in the picture. They appear on clothes lines, in laundry baskets and in wardrobe chests. But they are all different and all beautiful.

Leatrice Joy, Edith Roberts, Conrad Nagel, Jack Mower, Julia Faye, Edythe Chapman, Sylvia Ashton, Theodore Roberts, James Neil, John Davidson and others appear in the all-star cast of "Saturday Night."

STRAND LAST TIMES TODAY

"Enemies of Women," which will be screened for the last time at the Strand theater today, proved a happy hunting ground for the scenic artist, Joseph Urban. It is full to the brim with atmosphere.

The artist's favorite setting of his many in "Enemies of Women" is the boudoir of Alicia, Duchess De Deille, the role played by Alma Rubens. It is done in grey, striped in silver, for colors photograph, of course. The walls' most intriguing niches for bits of rare statuary, a dressing table set in a half-circled enclosure, raised two steps from the remainder of the room, is exquisitely done in silver and silk, crystal bottles and the myriad of exquisite details of an exotic woman. It is a room exalting the personality of an extravagant woman.

Having established himself as one of the leading portrayers of vigorous, outdoor roles on the screen, in this latest photoplay Mayo enters the field of purely emotional drama.

PLAN ARREST OF HUSBAND WHOSE WIFE SHOT PRIEST

Warrant for Embezzlement is Issued Against Him for $50,000

CHICAGO, Ill.—Detectives with warrants charging embezzlement, waited today for Rev. Nicholas Strutyński, Greek Catholic priest of Ramsey, Pa., en route here to assist his wife, held for grand jury action in connection with the death of Rev. Basil Stetsuk, who was shot and killed Sunday in the presence of the congregation of the Greek Catholic church of Michael the Archangel.

Held for $50,000

The Rev. Strutyński was formerly the pastor of St. Nicholas Greek Catholic church here and was succeeded by Rev. Stetsuk. Mrs. Strutyński originally told the police she had shot Father Stetsuk because he had accused her husband of misappropriating church funds. Her husband is under indictment for embezzlement of $50,000 which it is said he put into a church building fund, according to the police. Friends of the slain pastor procured warrants and sent detectives to meet Father Strutyński.

After a coroner's jury, sitting in an undertaking room crowded with excited members of Father Stetsuk's parish, recommended that she be held for grand jury action, Mrs. Strutyński declared she had done the shooting because "Father Stetsuk was a hypocrite and a cheat," who has "prostituted his talents and deceived his people."

"I did it for the masses," she was quoted as saying. "I hurt their feelings. These people in church, by killing their priest, are killing me. Now it will take me so much longer to see the truth of it all—just so much longer before it will help Europe."

Wants No Defense

She declared she did not want a lawyer to defend her, because, "he would try to save my life and would forget all about the thing I did this for. I would like a lawyer who would not make this shooting futile, even if he had to have me executed," she was quoted.

The money for legal counsel she said should be devoted to the relieving of suffering Ukrainians from where she originally came. The church where the shooting occurred, is affiliated with the Ukrainian branch of the Greek Orthodox church.

SCHOOLS TRY NEW PLAN

All pupils who have an average of 95 per cent in their work will be relieved of taking final examinations at the close of each term of school.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made

Here's an easy way to save $2. and yet have the best remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for five times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membrane, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine tract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.
